Army, German Officials Seek To End Incidents

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Bavarian state officials called another meeting with high-ranking U. S. Army officers today in an effort to end the growing number of incidents involving American soldiers and German civilians.

The conference was scheduled under personal direction of Bavarian Premier Wilhelm Hoegner, who earlier this week ordered steel-helmeted reserve state policemen to patrol GI trouble spots.

The first meeting of this kind was held here Tuesday night.

The test of a midnight curfew for U. S. soldiers imposed by European Commander Gen. Henry I. Hodes will come tonight. Hodes reinstated the curfew Wednesday. However, out of fairness to the troops, military police did not arrest GIs caught out after midnight on the first night of the curfew, but merely sent them back to their bases.

West Germany's biggest newspaper appealed to U. S. troops today to "remain old friends" with the Germans and "stop all this incident business."

The appeal came after two young Germans died in street fights with GIs and a 15-year-old girl was raped by seven soldiers. These were the most serious of dozens of incidents involving violence.

The newspaper Bild Zeitung, which has a daily circulation of more than 1 million copies, published a page editorial in both German and English calling for "a meeting of the minds" to restore badly damaged German-American relations.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Letters from a German group demanding recall of U. S. troops have been received by Pennsylvania relatives of three Americans stationed in Germany, the Army said today.

Receipt of the letters was disclosed amid reports of growing tension between Americans and Germans in Germany.

Barracuda Slashes Woman Wader

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A barracuda slashed a 38-year-old woman while she waded in the surf here, authorities reported today.

Mrs. Eleanor Nelson, Joliet, Ill., underwent five hours of surgery Tuesday night to repair the deep slashes and gouges in her left leg, a hospital spokesman said.

Mrs. Nelson was reported in "fair" condition. Doctors said she must be hospitalized several weeks.

Experts on the barracuda said they often come into shallow water during summer months to feed and occasionally they strike bathers.

Water Dep't Shows Profit, But Bonds and Interest Eliminate It

(Editor's Note: This is the second story on Harrisburg's city finances.)

The Harrisburg water department had an operating income of $49,120.09 for the year ended April 30, which would appear considerable, but the payment of bonds and interest and other non-operating charges reduced the net to $1,137.26.

In addition, since the cost of the new lake and the filter plant exceeded the amount provided for that work, the balance of the amount due on the filter plant addition will cause a considerable deficit.

(The current report of City Treasurer Bill Williams shows the construction fund overdrawn $4,477.24 as of June 30.)

The report of Rice & Bedel, certified public accountants, who audited the city's finances as of April 30, showed total operating income of $115,364.13 from sales of water, tap service charges and miscellaneous income.

Operating expenses totaled $66,244.04, of which $40,092.40 was for labor and clerical hire. Bond retirement, interest, depreciation and other expenses totaled $47,982.63.

As of April 30, the Water Department had a cash balance of $56,784.27, but $57,101.83 was set aside for approaching bond and interest, depreciation and customers' meter deposits, so the actual operating fund was $317.61 in the red. The overdraft in this fund at the beginning of the year was $1,454.87, the

Begin Construction Work on New Telephone Exchange Building Here

Construction has started on the new Harrisburg exchange building of the General Telephone Co. of Illinois on West Church street between the Cummins building and Pankey's bakery.

The large, one-story brick building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $85,000 to construct, will house the Harrisburg exchange offices, dial telephone equipment, a warehouse and garage. Thus all the activities of the exchange, which now are spread out over three or four different sites, will be under one roof.

General contractor for the job is Stanley Edmister of Eldorado, who was the low bidder. William Brown of Harrisburg is doing the dirt work for him now in preparation for the construction of the building.

Millard Lynch, exchange manager, said the building is needed for the expanding operations of the company.

He pointed out that in 1946 there were but 2,400 telephones in Harrisburg and that now the figure is 4,350. Employed here are 63 persons with a $165,000 yearly payroll. Through-out the state the number of General Telephone installations have doubled during the same period.

He said that installation of dial telephones will be started this fall and that dial service should be in operation next summer. A definite date cannot yet be set, he stated.

Work already has been done toward establishing a dial system here, he said. A lot of cable and poles for dial conversion already have been placed in the north part of town and the south part has been engineered and staked for additional poles and cable relief, he stated.

Although it is not a certainty, Mr. Lynch said it is anticipated that the Dorris Heights area now being served by rural lines will have urban service when the dial phones are installed.

Another major improvement, he said, will be individual ringing for rural customers, who also will receive the dial telephones. The company's Eldorado building is nearly complete and dial equipment is now being installed there, he said. About one-half of the telephones on the Eldorado exchange already have been converted to dial, and this type of service will be put into operation there this fall.

The Carrier Mills and Stonefort areas got dial service in 1950 and when the Harrisburg conversion is complete, all telephones in the county under the General Telephone system will be the dial type.

Besides Edmister, other contractors who will do special work on the new building here are F. N. Russler, Harrisburg plumbing contractor; Skaggs Electric Co., Harrisburg, electrical contractor; and Daniels Refrigeration Service, Pinckneyville, heating and air-conditioning contractor. All submitted low bids at a letting held here June 21.

Kiwanis Selling Booster Passes to Aid Boys' Program

Kiwanis Baseball Booster passes, to help finance the baseball program for the boys of this city and area, go on sale today.

In the past the Kiwanis summer program has been supported mostly by a small group of business men and Kiwanis fund raising projects. Various business and professional people also have expressed a desire to assist the program previously but were unable to sponsor a team.

This year these interested individuals may contribute to the support of the program by purchasing booster passes. Business booster passes are being presented to all merchants and professional men who contribute $10 or more to the Boys' Baseball fund. Individuals contributing $3 or more will receive an individual booster pass. The entire proceeds from money contributed will be used for the program by the Kiwanis club.

Business and professional people will be contacted by Kiwanis teams during the next two weeks for any contribution they might wish to make.

Parents or anyone else wanting to purchase a booster pass may do so by contacting Vernard Clayton at the Harrisburg funeral home.

Expenses, subject to control of the state authorities, totaled $39,515.81, and work now under way will require a large portion of the $40,007.74 balance.

Pictures of Six Drowned Marines Held in Front of Sergeant at Trial

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—The photographs of six drowned Marine recruits were held in front of a rigidly stiff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon at his manslaughter court-martial today.

As the fourth day of the 31-year-old junior drill instructor's trial began, the prosecution began introducing evidence. The photographs, held scarcely four feet away from McKeon's unblinking gaze, were part of that evidence.

The prosecution was attempting to send McKeon to prison for six years and three months and to have him dishonorably discharged from the Marines for an April death march in which the six men were drowned in a training exercise to "teach them discipline."

The defense contends he was more of a hero than a sinner because, although suffering from a sprained back, he plunged into the swirling waters of Ribbon Creek in an effort to save his platoon when its members went into panic. Objects to Pictures

McKeon, from Worcester, Mass., was tried on charges of disobeying orders, cruelty to troops, manslaughter, and bringing discredit to the armed services.

The photograph introduced in evidence by the prosecutor, Marine Maj. Charles B. Sevier, showed five of the bodies as they were taken from the tidal stream on April 9—the day after the tragedy—after having been in the water 16 to 20 hours. The sixth body was not recovered until the afternoon of April 10.

The drownings occurred about 8:45 p. m. on April 8.

Defense attorney Emile Zola Berman objected strenuously to the use of the photographs in evidence.

GOP Approval Almost Certain For Selection

State Senator Serving Second Term Is From Decatur

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton today announced he will recommend State Sen. Elbert S. Smith (R-Decatur) to the Republican State Central Committee as candidate for state auditor to replace Orville E. Hodge.

Committee approval of Smith is regarded as certain because of the governor's position as leader of the state GOP.

Smith, 45, is a lawyer and is completing his second term as state senator for the 28th District, made up of Logan, De Witt and Macon counties.

The Independent Voters of Illinois last year voted Smith one of the "five best" men in the General Assembly.

Stratton said "I believe Senator Smith will add great strength to our ticket. He has had an outstanding record in the Legislature."

Stratton said Smith's reputation is known across the state and this "should give him a head start in making a successful campaign."

Smith will withdraw as a candidate for the state Senate.

Stratton also said he believed Smith's legislative background would be a "big help" in improving the auditor's office.

Born on Farm

Smith is married and has two children. He was born on a Sangamon County farm in 1911 and is a graduate of James Millikin University, and the University of Alabama. He served in the Navy in World War II.

Hodge withdrew as a candidate for re-election in the face of a huge check scandal in his office.

Stratton conferred with Smith Wednesday about his availability as a candidate for the auditor's place on the GOP ticket.

Smith said after talking with Stratton that he could not answer immediately, but would let the governor know soon.

Meanwhile, Dr. Lloyd Morey, president emeritus of the University of Illinois, was sworn in late Wednesday to fill Hodge's unexpired term as auditor and took prompt steps to fire persons connected with the investigation of the half-million-dollar check scandal that drove Hodge from office.

Fires Lane, Shanahan

Only a few minutes after he was sworn in, Morey announced he had fired Lloyd Lane, supervisor of payroll accounting for Hodge, and Thomas Shanahan, caretaker of the auditor's records warehouses.

Morey also announced the auditor's office would have no more dealings with Edward A. Epping, Hodge's office manager who was not on the payroll but was paid a $1,000 a month fee through his accounting firm.

Morey's first official act as auditor was to sign a state check for $1,300,000 for unemployment compensation payments.

Morey named William L. Day, Hodge's administrative assistant, to assume "general responsibility and supervision" of the office here, and Lyman Sorensen, chief financial examiner under Hodge, to run the auditor's Chicago office.

Morey said the appointments were tentative until further notice.

Luke Hilliard Funeral Friday

Rev. Buddy Peyton, assisted by Rev. Cordeil Ellis, will officiate and burial will be in Sunset Lawn cemetery.

The body was taken from the Gaskins funeral home to the family residence near Jordan's curve.

Worthwhile Document

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
Few nonfiction books of recent times are likely to stir as much interest or controversy as Robert Donovan's "Eisenhower: The Inside Story." Its appearance raises some questions we all ought to look at.

For one thing, there is the matter of the administration's making available to Donovan, a New York Herald Tribune reporter, intimate proceedings of the executive branch of a character heretofore always withheld from both Congress and the courts.

Naturally enough, Congress is annoyed. Thus far senators have failed to get any administration spokesman to appear before them to discuss the issue. The Eisenhower people are saying nothing in public at all, but general report has it that Sherman Adams, top presidential assistant, made the material available.

No doubt Congress will recall the Donovan book whenever in the future it demands documents or other information from the White House. No doubt, too, the refusal to give this material will be just as firm as in the past.

To some this might seem both unfair and unreasonable. But there is nevertheless rather broad acceptance for the idea that any administration is privileged to judge for itself what information shall be disclosed, and to whom.

Handling "inside stuff" over to a single reporter is not an unprecedented procedure. Ernest Lindley did a similar job on Franklin Roosevelt's first term, and Joseph Alsop and his collaborators turned out three volumes on his second term.

An administration bent on giving out the story will of course choose a reporter reasonably sympathetic to its cause. Inevitably, too, because of the delicate security questions involved in many of today's affairs, it must restrict release. Donovan had to get a top-grade Q-clearance before he could peek at the documents.

Within these necessary limitations, Donovan is felt by most critics to have done a pretty competent job of reporting on what he was shown and could learn.

We have to understand that it isn't the complete "inside story." It is founded mainly on minutes of Mr. Eisenhower's cabinet meetings. Proceedings of the top-level National Security Council, where most of the big decisions affecting peace and defense are taken, are not involved. Vital staff discussions in the nature of things are also not drawn upon.

Nevertheless, there is much fascinating material in his book, and not all of it complimentary to the administration, by a long shot. Evidence of that is the Democratic declaration that it will be used by the party's candidates in the coming campaign.

What the book discloses is a subject in itself. Suffice it to say here that politicians, newsmen, historians and ordinary citizens should all be glad it has been published. We cannot help but be better informed because of it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Latin-American Exiles Create Danger To Dictators In Panama; Potent Senator George Went To Work For Hells Canyon; Army Refused To Prosecute Idaho Power Co. For Unauthorized Bridge.

WASHINGTON. — Some of the most wanted men in the Western Hemisphere will be the potential "targets for today" at the conference of presidents of the American Republics, which President Eisenhower is attending this week end.

These president-dictators are "wanted" by gun-toting exiles from their respective countries, and security agents are worried sick over the possibility of an incident. Never before in history have so many presidents gathered together in one place.

Among the most "wanted" presidents are Trujillo of Santo Domingo, Somoza of Nicaragua, Perez Jimenez of Venezuela, and Rojas Pinillas of Colombia.

These dictators are responsible for the assassination of many thousands of people, and avenging relatives and political supporters may be lying in wait for them, virtually on the banks of Uncle Sam's Panama Canal.

Those who talk about "security measures" in the Republic of Panama are reminded that the President of Panama, Col. Jose A. Remon, was shot to death like a sitting duck in the very presence of secret police and bodyguards at the Juan Franco race track in Panama on Jan. 2, 1955.

The Panamanians were unable to protect their own president, who had complete control of the National Guard and the Panamanian secret police. Yet they now claim they can protect 16 presidents who will be assembled with Eisenhower in Panama.

Though Eisenhower is protected by the U. S. Secret Service, it has no actual authority in Panama.

Panama is jealous of her sovereignty, and how much extra-territorial privileges will be permitted Americans in the presence of high officials from all the other American republics is doubtful. The same applies to the security forces and bodyguards which the Latin American presidents will bring with them.

SENATOR GEORGE'S LAST BATTLE

The weighty, sometimes prestigious, sometimes of elder statesman George of Georgia was thrown into the fight over Hells Canyon—against his old friends, the Georgia Power Company and other utilities. George, who retires from the Senate this year, made the proposed big federal dam on the Snake river the last senatorial battle of his career, told deserting Democratic colleagues how important it was for them to vote solidly against the private utilities.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson also threw his persuasive charm into full gear and talked to each deserting Democrat—twice. The two made some converts.

Among the arguments they used is the fact that the Eisenhower administration is not against federal power in principle, but only against federal power when it comes to the good dam-sites; and for federal power when it comes to the poor dam-sites.

Or, as Senator Neuberger of Oregon puts it: "Ike would give the cream to the private utilities, the skimmed milk to the government."

What Senators George and Johnson faced, however, was the fact that practically every big utility in the U. S. A. teamed up with the Idaho Power Company to defeat federal development of Hells Canyon. When senators who live in the midwest or the south have gone home recently, they found representatives of local power companies waiting to buttonhole them at the airport or railroad station, whether the time was 5 a. m. or 11 p. m.

Approximately $1,000,000 was spent by the private utilities in leading magazines for advertisements opposing the big federal dam at Hells Canyon. The last series of ads, published in May, was estimated at around $300,000. This was the third in a series. This cost, of course, came out of the rates paid by electricity users throughout the nation.

The utility lobby even took a junket of newsmen to the Pacific northwest earlier this year for a look at Hells Canyon. Airplane travel was free; liquor was lavish.

Flying over the famous canyon, newsmen saw a bridge down below and asked about it. "That's built to carry materials across the Snake River," explained a power company official, "but as far as we're concerned it doesn't exist."

What he meant was that the Eisenhower administration was so anxious to help speed up construction of the Ida Power Company's small dam at Hells Canyon before Congress could act, it let Idaho Power build a bridge without the O. K. of the chief of Army Engineers and the secretary of Army—which is a criminal offense.

On January 3 of this year, Idaho Power filed for permission to build the bridge. Under the law three weeks are required for any opposition to file protests. But on January 9, six days later, the power company went ahead with its bridge without a license from the Army to build.

When Senator Morse of Oregon wrote the Justice Department March 10, pointing out that this was subject to criminal prosecution, he did not receive a reply for two months. During this two months the bridge was completed.

Finally, on May 8, he received a reply from Warren Olney, chief of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, admitting: "As your letter states, the commencement of construction of this bridge without prior approval of the plans by the chief of engineers and secretary of the Army is a violation of 33 USC 401 for which criminal sanctions are provided."

However, Olney went on to point out that another section of the law which he quite frankly admitted was "somewhat unusual" provides that "it shall be the duty of district attorneys of the United States to vigorously prosecute all offenders whenever requested to do so by the secretary of the Army."

And since Secretary of the Army Brucker, a part of Charlie Wilson's Pentagon team, would not request prosecution, Olney said he could not prosecute.

This is one slight indication of how far the administration leaned over backward to help the utilities take over the one remaining big damsite in the U. S. A. while letting Uncle Sam take over the poorer dam-sites.

A recent estimate of Germany's requirements of American coal for 1956 placed the total around 20 million tons, a 13 million ton rise over 1955 imports.

Survey Stresses Sales Background

CHICAGO — Sales work is the best training ground for today's top executives, according to the conclusion in a survey taken by the Jacar Corp.

The survey indicated that sales work, by its very nature, develops those qualities most needed by top management—self-reliance, mature judgment, ability to motivate others, to think on one's feet, and above all, to deal with people.

The study shows that about two-thirds of the executives surveyed received their experience in such general fields as sales management, administration and production, in contrast with specialized fields like research, finance, engineering and law.

The average top executive surveyed completed college and probably worked for one company before joining the company where he now is top man. He started with the company in his early twenties and is now between 50 and 60 years old. He's been with the company about 30 years.

Tribute to the Late Grant Dalton

Grant Dalton formerly of Harrisburg, the son of the late Wilson and Ollie Dalton passed away on July 5th after an illness of over two years.

Grant was a city fireman for over 31 years. Overcome by gas in an explosion and in trying to rescue a fellowman he was injured and had a heart attack. He suffered all these past two years an invalid unable to leave his room. He was in a coma for ten days before the Lord took him Home.

We his family feel our loss greatly, he was a fine man, a wonderful husband and father. He left behind six children and eleven grandchildren. He is greatly missed by all of us. Perhaps the Lord loved him more than we did for He called him to live in His Mansion.

Truly it is said there is no greater love than to lay down your life for your fellowmen, this is what Grant Dalton did.

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Burt Lancaster tried to talk Katherine Hepburn into doing a western for his independent film company. "Not on your life," replied Kate. "Westerns are always written with men, not women, in mind. I'd do one if I could get on a horse and ride. But I'm tired of playing the strong-character woman who props up weak men. Actually, the one part I'd like to portray is Gary Cooper."

Burt and Kate are co-starring in the film version of "The Rainmaker" and it may be Burt's big chance to crack the Oscar barrier after seeing two of his leading ladies, Shirley Booth and Anna Magnani, walk off with Academy Awards.

Not that La Hepburn is a slouch but because Burt's role of gay, flamboyant dreamer and con man is hand-tailored—a part he's milking like a battery of automatic milking machines.

THE FEATURE MOVIE based on the "Lassie" TV series is due for filming in September... Charlton Heston and his wife, Lydia Clarke, will make the summer stock tour through the east in "Detective Story."

RKO is planting a camera in one of the covered wagons doomed to roll over a 400-foot cliff in "Run of the Arrow" to obtain some exciting footage. A novel idea at that. Usually it's the plot that goes over the cliff in most Hollywood westerns.

Hollywood designer Howard Shoup, gawking Debbie Reynolds for "Buckle Up, Joe," is thumbing his nose at Paris' high-waisted styles. Says he: "I'm giving Debbie the waist-where-the-waist-should-be styles of 1937."

JEFF MORROW heard one of Marilyn Monroe's associates complain that she had to join the standing room only crowd to see a Broadway hit play. "Even standing," commented Jeff, "I'll bet she had the best seat in the house."

It's lean days for Hollywood chorus dolls. Out of 350 dancers registered with Central Casting, only 100 are at work these days in a sharp decline of musicals, both in movies and TV.

Maureen O'Hara and Errol Flynn are near the contract signing stage for a movie titled "Lord Johnny." It's due for filming in England in October.

Hollywood's major studios are planning for a Hollywood Film Festival to be held in November under auspices of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association. The association wanted to import 20 or 30 foreign stars to Hollywood for a series of "glamor events."

Joan Crawford is Miss Confusion over telefilm offers. "I don't know whether I'm going to tackle TV or not," she says. "I did a pilot once, but no more. If they don't know by now what I have to offer they never will."

Flag Gen. Posey Carried in Revolutionary War Battle Rests at Shawneetown

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a story written by Guyla Moreland, which appeared recently in The Cairo (Ill.) Evening Citizen. It tells of the Revolutionary Flag carried by Gen. Thomas Posey which is kept at Shawneetown. The story was supplied by Louis Aaron of Harrisburg, president of the Saline County Historical society, who is a friend of the writer.

By GUYLA MORELAND
This is the story of the Shawneetown Flag. Actually it is the flag of General Thomas Posey, but in the way of people, it has come to be known by the town in which it is to be seen, rather than by the name of the man who owned it.

At one time, the state of Indiana offered $10,000 for it but the money was never appropriated.

It was carried by General Posey at the Battle of Stoney Point when he was leader of the battalion that successfully stormed the English stronghold in the Revolutionary War.

Mrs. H. J. Walker, writing in the book, "Revolutionary Soldiers Buried in Illinois," gives the following information:

"Gen. Thomas Posey was born in Virginia, July 9, 1750. He served as captain in the Seventh Virginia Regiment; in 1776 was promoted to major in Col. Daniel Morgan's regiment. He was made lieutenant-colonel, and after the close of the war was made brigadier general. He was in the battles of Monmouth, Stony Point, and was at Yorktown. In 1794 he removed to Kentucky, where he was a senator in 1805-06. He also served in the War of 1812. He was governor of Indian Territory, serving until it was made a state in 1816. He removed to Illinois, settling in Gallatin county, where he died March 18, 1818. He is buried near Shawneetown, and his grave is marked by a monument.

The monument is a low box-like vault of large stone slabs in the Westwood Cemetery about two miles north of Shawneetown.

Mrs. John S. Hacker (Fannie Posey), wife of one of Cairo's river boat captains, was a direct descendant of Gen. Posey, thus giving Cairo a direct interest in the story of the Shawneetown flag.

The flag is in fragmentary condition. The size is now 36 inches wide and 59 inches long. A flag authority figures "taking as a basis the size of the blue field, 20 inches by 32 1/4 inches and the width of the stripes, varying 3/4 to 4 inches, so the original conjectured size would be about 4 by 5 feet."

It is interesting to note that the stars are not arranged in a circle. There was no provision in the resolution adopted June 14, 1777 as to how the stars should be arranged and it is a much argued point among some historians.

The resolution adopted by the Continental Congress states: "The flag of the United States be 13 stripes—red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

This design appears to have developed from an earlier flag, the Grand Union Flag of 13 red and white stripes, but bearing on its union the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, signifying the Colonists' mother country. This first flag was also known as Congress Colors, because it first floated over the Continental Navy controlled by the Congress.

The 13-star flag was adopted primarily as a marine emblem. John Paul Jones, who on the same day had been given command of the U. S. S. Ranger by Congress, is said to have been the first to display it when he took command of the ship at Portsmouth, N. H., July 12, 1777.

At first as new states were added, a new stripe and a new star were added to the flag. In 1814 when the Star Spangled Banner was written, it had 15 stars and 15 stripes.

The flag began to be awkward and unwieldy, so in 1818 Congress restored the flag to one of 13 stripes and a blue union with one star for each state, adding only the star when a new state was admitted.

No stars have been added since July 4, 1912 when Arizona and New Mexico were admitted to the union and their stars added.

The Stars and Stripes was not carried by the Army—although used as a garrison flag—until 1834, when the artillery acquired the right. The infantry obtained the same right in 1841; the cavalry in 1887.

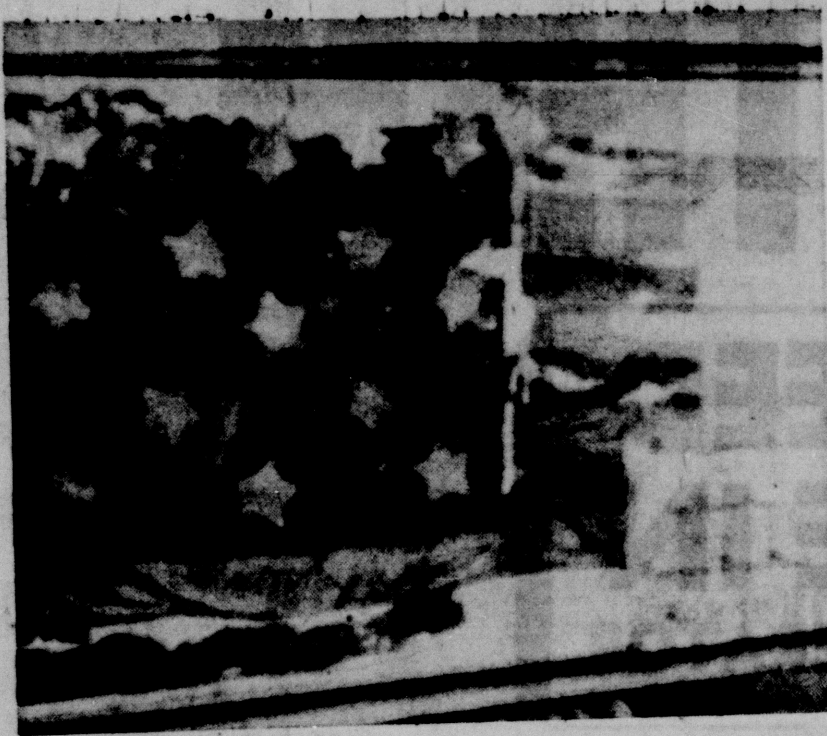

Nevertheless, artists have depicted it in battle in numerous famous paintings of the Revolutionary War.

Mrs. Henry William English, given as an authority by the Kentucky Historical Society and one who knew William Posey, son of General Posey and she knew many older people in Jacksonville who had known the General and it was from them she gathered her material, writes:

"General Posey scaled the Fort with the flag and planted it inside the Fort. He saved the tattered flag as a precious memento of the capture of the Fort from the English. The Battle of Stoney Point was fought July 16, 1779 so I see no reason to doubt the flag was carried there as stated by General Posey as he scaled the walls at the Fort. The history of Henderson County, Ky., at the reduction

FIRST FLAG, reproduced from a paper issued to celebrate the issuance of the first newspaper in the colonies, the Boston News Letter, April 17-24, 1704, probably printed about 1893 or afterwards. It shows the stars set in rows, rather than in a circle.

REVOLUTIONARY FLAG carried by Gen. Thomas Posey, is in the bank at Shawneetown. Originally the flag was about four by five feet, made of silk, having 13 stars and a like number of stripes. Gen. Posey carried this flag in the Battle of Stoney Point on July 16, 1779.

of Stoney Point, his valor shown out conspicuously; he being the first to scale the Fort and enter the main work."

"The Posey flag is accepted as genuine and the 'facts' are considered as facts. All the Posey family tell the same history. He had a son, William Posey, who lived here (Jacksonville, Ill.) and many of the older people who were alive when I gathered my material told of William's father's great valor in scaling the walls of the Fort and planting the flag there in the place of the British and that the flag was still in the family possession at Shawneetown."

"The flag is silk, a copy of it was made of cotton, which the Robinsons gave a Posey relative and for a time this flag hung in the Memorial Museum at St. Louis."

It was the discovery that this flag hanging in St. Louis was not genuine that caused the many questions to arise about the genuineness of the original flag. Its authenticity cannot be doubted.

Mrs. Jesse Robinson Reed, whose family were the last owners of the flag writes:

"It is the flag of General Thomas Posey of Revolutionary fame, who served on Gen. George Washington's staff, and after the war, he was appointed Gov. General of Indiana Territory, which at that time included a part of Indiana and Illinois with headquarters at Vincennes, Ind.

"General Posey was the father of a large family, which included either seven or eight sons. Lloyd Posey lived with his family in Shawneetown and in this home General Posey spent his latter days of his life, he died and is buried in our historic old Westwood cemetery."

"In his will, which is on record in the court house, he gave to this son Lloyd, all of his Revolutionary effects, and it came into our possession with its history as told by this son."

"It was given first to a Judge Bowman, a lawyer and partner of Robert Ingersoll who in turn gave it to my father and a bachelor uncle who made his home until his death in our home."

"This uncle and my father had started at that early date a collection of Indian relics and antiques, and Judge Bowman gave it in turn with its history as told him by Lloyd Posey, the son, to my father and uncle."

"After my father's death many years ago, my uncle willed the flag and other belongings to my mother and my brother, the late F. E. Robinson, who succeeded my father in the drug business; and my brother gave the flag to me before his death."

"I am the last one of our immediate family, as all have preceded me in death. I have a niece and a nephew but I have not decided definitely just what disposal I will make of it, but expect soon to make a sworn statement as to its authenticity and history, as I think this should be done for future generations."

At the time Mrs. Reed wrote the above she was making her home at the Presbyterian Home at Newburgh, Ind. (Feb. 12, 1944). She may have died since, but the flag can still be seen at the Shawneetown Bank.

Illinois Sales Tax Collections for February Total $21,977,130

SPRINGFIELD — State sales tax collections in February totaled $21,977,130 from 139,676 "taxpayers," or business firms collecting the taxes on their sales, the Revenue Department reported today.

The total included $1,003,215 collected under the "use" tax on goods purchased outside the state for use in Illinois.

The February collections were based on sales made in January. A total of $12,640,411 came from Cook County, and $8,916,861 from downstate taxpayers.

Authenticity and went back and recommended that the state purchase it for $10,000.

"About that time he died or state funds for the purchase became exhausted and the sale was never completed."

And what of history itself, what does it say about the flag? I have been unable to find any thing saying there was a United States flag flown at Stoney Point. However in "The Storming of Stoney Point" by Henry P. Johnston, A. M. there is the following letter from General Wayne to Washington on page 170:

"I forgot to mention that two flags and two standards were taken, the former belonging to the garrison, and the latter to the 17th Regt. These shall be sent to Congress by the first opportunity." These were British flags.

General Greene wrote to Col. Cox, July 7, 1779 (same book, page 184):

"Of course, the right column led by Posey had full possession of the Fort previous to even a single man of the left being in."

So it does not seem at all unlikely that General Posey did indeed replace the captured British flag with the one he saved and brought with him to the Far West.

clerk writes from Shawneetown, March 21, 1944:

"I have known of this flag since I was a mere child—being raised here—but it is accepted as a genuine revolutionary flag—but the most authentic information I have comes from Rev. Frank Sanders, a Presbyterian minister of this city."

"Rev. Sanders received an appointment to West Point and on returning from there in about 1927, made a visit to the State Capital at Indianapolis. While there he engaged in an interesting conversation with a Major McCormick who was Custodian of the flags and state museum and told Major McCormick of the Posey flag. He became much interested and said if it were genuine he would purchase it for the state of Indiana."

"Soon thereafter he came down here and made an investigation and satisfied himself of its au-

Youth is Found Guilty of Slaying His Sweetheart

APPLETON, Wis. (U.P.) — A jury of six men and six women found Michael McCormick guilty of second degree murder late Wednesday night in the death of his pregnant sweetheart, Theresa Van Der Horst.

The jury deliberated three hours before returning its verdict. It rejected five other possible verdicts, ranging from first degree murder to acquittal.

The 18-year-old Kaukauna, Wis., high school athlete had admitted striking the Van Der Horst girl with a shell casing on March 9 and stuffing her body into a cubbyhole in the basement of his grandmother's home. The 18-year-old girl suffocated and her body was found two days later.

The second degree murder charge carries a sentence of 14 to 25 years in state prison. McCormick would be eligible for parole in two years.

Marilyn Ann Ragsdale, Eldorado, is a member of the 32 voice women choir that is part of the program of the McKendree College Summer Coral workshop at Lebanon.

This group, under the direction of Glen Freiner, head of the Fine Arts department, will present Virgil Thomson's "Mess," a composition written for a soprano and alto choir.

July 27 Final Date To Sign for Soil Bank

The final date for farm operators to sign up for the 1946 acreage reserve part of the soil bank is July 27, according to Herman Driskell, chairman of the local ASC office.

The date, previously set at July 20, has been extended to July 27 by the Agriculture department.

Any farmer who is interested in this program and has not yet signed up should call at that office without delay, continued Mr. Driskell. "We are doing our best to keep a full office force available to discuss each individual situation and to extend the greatest possible service to all farmers," he said. The office is located at Harrisburg in the city hall.

Not only must the farm operator sign the agreement by July 20, but any major changes in previously executed agreements must be revised by such date. Some additional time is provided for obtaining the signature of other interested producers.

326 Cities Spend Half Billion for Parking

CHICAGO — — Almost half a billion dollars is being spent to provide 786,154 parking spaces in 326 major cities, a survey shows.

The American Municipal Association reported that the parking facilities are either already available or definitely planned for construction.

Cities studied all were over 25,000 population, and the report is confined to facilities created and owned by local government agencies.

The survey showed their publicly provided off-street parking in these cities accounted for more than 108,844 spaces, and that an additional 51,567 are planned for 1946.

Nomination of Harriman Could Speed 2-Party System in South

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The nomination of Gov. Averell Harriman for president would do more than any other likely political action right now to speed the coming of a two-party system in the South.

Harriman appears to be the Democrat most feared by conservative Southerners. He's the only New Deal-Fair Deal candidate in the race. He has been warned by some Democrats that his nomination for President probably would obtain a bolt on election day.

If it worked out that way, the 1956 presidential election would be the third in a row in which Southern, conservative Democrats had bolted the party ticket in a big way. A conservative state's rights party took 39 Southern electoral votes from President Truman in 1948. These so-called Dixiecrats won Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina, and picked up the 39th electoral vote in Tennessee.

Previous Southern Breaks
Four Southern states bolted Adlai E. Stevenson in 1952 to cast their electoral votes for President Eisenhower. They were Florida, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Former President Hoover broke the solid South in the 1928 election when those states were afire about the issue of prohibition and the fact that the Democrats had nominated a Catholic, Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.

Prohibition is dead and religion is much less an issue now than then. But the issues presently dividing the Democrats of the South from the big city and organized labor elements in the north and east are not subsiding. They are getting bigger every day, notably the issue of race relations.

The more important those issues become, the greater the pressure for a Southern two-party system. The plight of the Southern conservatives is this: They cannot nominate one of their own, Sen. Harry S. Byrd of Virginia, for example. They no longer can veto a nomination because in 1936 the Democratic party abolished the rule which had required a two-thirds majority for nomination of a presidential candidate.

The once-powerful Southern states are reduced within the Democratic party to accepting a compromise. That is what they seek this year. Most or, at least, many Southern leaders prefer Stevenson to anyone else in sight, even though many of them bolted him four years ago. It just about adds up to making the best of a bad bargain.

Compromise Candidate Sought

Stevenson has not changed much, if any, in four years. The Southerners were reaching for a conservative candidate in 1952 and Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia was their man. Russell lost and has hung up his shoes. He lost principally because organized labor now possesses in Democratic national conventions something of the veto power which the Southern states once had.

Labor, with considerable aid from others, vetoed Russell in 1952 and could stop him again, or any other Southern candidate. Stevenson in 1952 did not look so good to many in the South compared to Russell. This year, however, Stevenson looks much better to many Southerners when compared to the likely alternatives—Harriman and Sen. Estes Kefauver. Southerners, therefore, seek to make the best of it by a 1956 compromise which probably would lead in 1960 to another compromise, and so on.

If Harriman were nominated, however, the Democratic party in the South probably would shake itself apart again, perhaps to repeat again in 1960. That is the quickest path toward a two-party system in the South.

Suicide Attempt Sets Off Blast; Baby is Killed

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Queens County authorities ordered homicide charges filed against a distraught mechanic whose suicide attempt set off a tenement explosion, killing a baby and injuring five persons.

The shattering illuminating gas blast demolished the two-family house at Long Island City, Queens, and badly damaged two adjoining houses.

Police said William Kulka, 40, occupant of the ground floor apartment, touched off the explosion in an attempt at suicide because of the death of his wife in April of cancer.

A six-weeks-old girl, Margaret Mary de Gregorio, died in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, of a skull fracture. The child was found under a pile of bricks in front of the leveled building.

Seriously injured were Kulka and the dead baby's mother, Mrs. Florence de Gregorio, 28. Mrs. Gregorio was dragged by detectives from wreckage at the rear of the building.

Also injured was Anthony Pinghera, 66, whose home was next to the demolished tenement; Vincent de Marcantonio, 22, and James Shand, 12. All were struck by flying bricks from the blast.

The explosion rocked a wide area of Long Island City, buckled the walls of adjoining buildings and showered bricks and glass 150 feet in all directions.

TYPICAL FBI case saw Orville Adkins grabbed in 1937 kidnap-slaying of a 70-year-old Huntington, W. Va., minister and turned over for murder conviction by J. Edgar Hoover.

ELECTRIC CHAIR was the punishment for Carl Austin Hall in 1954, after arrest by FBI and conviction in kidnap-slaying of Bobby Greenlease in Kansas City. He wasn't alone...

HIS MATE, Bonnie Brown Heady, was given same sentence for the crime, which saw $600,000 ransom collected from Greenlease boy's father, a prominent auto dealer.

Don't Marry the Boss' Daughter

CHICAGO — Your chance of reaching the top in business today is, if you're an average American, improving. That is in spite of the fact that sons of major executives and owners of big business occupy substantial portions of top-level jobs.

According to W. Lloyd Warner, University of Chicago sociologist, "there is no evidence that opportunity for sons of farmers, laborers and white collar workers is decreasing. In fact, movement from these backgrounds into the business elite takes place in greater numbers today than it did a year ago."

Speaking at a meeting of the University's Citizens Board in Chicago, Warner said that big business is becoming more flexible by obtaining its leaders in increasing numbers from all parts of our society. According to Warner, over 30 per cent of the men who hold top positions are primarily from white collar, laboring or farm backgrounds.

Marrying the boss' daughter won't help, Warner said. In fact, "the business man's advancement was actually slower if he married the boss' daughter instead of marrying at his own social level."

Weinberger Kidnaping is Case No. 517 To FBI; All But 2 Are Marked 'Solved'

By KENNETH GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Small wonder the kidnapper of tiny Peter Weinberger wrote the words, "I am scared stiff."

Few kidnappers in recent times have gotten away with their heinous crime. And when caught the penalties have been stiff.

A select group of over 230 individuals can testify that abduction is dangerous and doesn't pay off.

They're the dregs of society now sitting behind federal bars because they tried their hand at kidnapping.

Many errors led to their apprehension and conviction but the big mistake they all made was crossing an interstate line with their victim. That gave the Federal Bureau of Investigation the chance to unleash its agents.

Now the snatcher of Peter Weinberger has Uncle Sam's cops to worry about, for the FBI is officially in on the case.

Under the federal kidnapping statute, G-men are allowed to take part in a local kidnap investigation after a time lapse of seven days. The assumption is that the hostage has been carried across a state boundary by that time.

For the FBI this is kidnapping case No. 517 and according to their records only two past cases are still unsolved.

This is one reason why 719 persons have entered U. S. jails in the last 20 years for kidnapping. These figures come from the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

From June 1954 to June 1955 officials of the FBI also reveal that 34 men and three women were sent to federal prisons for kidnapping. Their sentences averaged nearly 12 years and ranged from two years to life imprisonment.

Then there are some kidnappers who aren't around to tell about their mistakes. Since 1930 16 of them have been executed.

Most notable of these in recent years was the gas chamber execution of flowise Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady and her lumpy lover, Carl Austin Hall. The gruesome couple shocked and enraged the nation by their kidnapping murder of Bobby Greenlease three years ago.

A crim such as this and the cold-blooded Weinberger kidnapping have caused millions to ask what kind of human is it that steals another person away.

Experts agree there is no set pattern, for types of kidnappings vary from rape to maternal desire for a child.

FBI files show that in several cases kidnappers have been persons who posed as baby sitters. For example, in November, 1953, a sitter took five-month old Tommie Doughty from Indiana to Oklahoma. She was apprehended and sentenced to 20 years in federal court. And the code name used in the Weinberger note is, "Your Baby Sitter."

In another case that same year the tables were turned. An 18-year old girl was hired to baby sit, but it was just a ruse. She was taken from Arkansas to Tennessee and raped. The culprit was caught and got 25 years.

Generally, money is the greatest motivating factor in kidnapping. In the Greenlease case $600,000 was demanded and paid.

The first recorded instance of child kidnapping in the U. S. involved a ransom demand of $20,000. It came by mail after 4-year-old Charlie Ross was taken from Germantown, Pa., in 1874. The child was never found.

House Committee Votes Against Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON — The House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday slapped together a bill to cut everybody's income taxes—and then killed it by a 1-vote margin.

The vote was 13-12. The bill would have had no chance of enactment this year, even if it had cleared the committee.

The suddenly proposed bill would have granted tax cuts ranging from $200 to $910 a year for taxpayers who could afford to contribute as much as $1,000 a year into a pension plan for their old age.

The action came when the committee called up for a vote a bill to exempt railway workers from paying income taxes on the money they contribute to their pension funds. The administration has opposed it on grounds that it would give them "preferential treatment."

The committee amended it to extend the same treatment to everybody else, including those covered by social security and federal, state and local government employees.

Then, it added a provision to grant even bigger tax relief to self-employed persons who aren't covered by pension funds and who set up their own pension plans.

Then, the committee agreed to broaden that provision to extend it to everybody whether he is covered by pension plan or not.

Then, the whole bill—loaded up like a Christmas tree with something for everybody—was put to a vote and rejected.

The Homestake gold mine at Lead, S. D.—the largest on the North American continent—produced $18,000,000 worth of gold and silver last year.

La Tour's voice struck, sounding like a clap from a flat paddle. "You lie, Emmett! Chantry may be dead but if he is, your crew killed him before Rafter C rode into Yates canyon!"

Emmett merely shrugged his shoulder. "Nobody in Cashtown will believe it after they see the Rafter C lead in that shanty." "I'll dig Chantry up," Doc swore.

Norrington's riders spurring up the long slope of Gobbler's Knob burst into view.

Reaching the flat on which Rafter C was camped Hackett called the riders to a halt.

Hyman was finished with his fiddling and was stalking toward the wagon. His hand crept closer to his pistol as he neared the rig. Hackett ordered brashly, "That's far enough! Where's everybody, Hyman? Your bedrolls're empty." Frank yelled, "On the ledge, Norrington! You're being whip-saw-ed!"

Everlasting shock emerged thru the confusion that resulted from that yell. Norrington had left Cashtown solely to stampede the horses, to break or humble Jean. But he had gone too far. Frank caught the look on Norrington's face as the banker realized Milo Hackett was beyond control. He saw Hackett raise in his stirrups, dragging his belt gun. Norrington's open hand struck his arm. Norrington yelled at his men ordering them back. In a wild fury Hackett finishing yanking his pistol.

Even before he started his yell of warning to Norrington Frank threw his ram full force against Emmett's pistol hand. He put all his faith into his reflexes. He had seen Emmett react with the agility of a cat and his own tenseness told him how close this would be. When Emmett's gun went off a slashing burn of fire ran across Frank's ribs. He lunged anew, his body driving Emmett toward the edge of the shelf.

He heard a grunt from Swenson and was vaguely aware of the blacksmith holding a man above his head, of Swenson heaving him outward.

Emmett stood against the cedar; Frank became aware of clawing branches scraping his own face as he pressed relentlessly against Emmett. The cedar was going down, he and Emmett with it. And Emmett was still grappling him with one arm about his neck. A fierce and terrible pain exploded before him.

When his breath came freely once again he felt Emmett squirming from beneath him. He sensed their fall had been absorbed by the other man and wondered dully if Emmett had broken bones.

All about him rose the blast of guns. Men were yelling and horses shripping.

He saw Hyman bent forward at the waist the way men lean when walking up a steep slope, and in Hyman's hand his gun was spurring flame. While he watched Hyman spun crazily about. He went to one knee and dropped the Navy pistol.

After what had happened to Lily it was too much like throwing a life away. And Frank had been the one to order Hyman to this post beside the wagon. He glimpsed Milo Hackett's powder-smeared face beyond Hyman and was sure Milo had been the one to shoot Hyman. Frank leveled the Navy as Milo's gun covered him. The Navy kicked against his arm. Hackett went down clawing at thin air, and Hackett was dead.

He wheeled in time to catch Emmett rushing toward him. He pulled the gun squarely down on Emmett and shouted for him to quit fighting. Emmett rushed in.

Frank triggered. His hammer fell on an exploded cap. A moment later Emmett reached him. He sent his fist plunging into Emmett's face. The blow cracked when it landed against flesh and bone. Then a shot banged beside his head. The man's eyes took on surprise, and then death blanked his expression. Emmett slid forward until he fell at Frank's feet. Frank spun about looking squarely at Norrington. There was a smoking pistol in Norrington's fist. These two had fought one another since their first meeting, there could have been no other ending.

Frank lifted his hand and flung the useless Navy toward Norrington. The man on the horse shifted his weight and took the blow against the side of his body. An instant later he lurched crazily and fell from his saddle. But not from Frank's strike with the empty pistol.

Tod Drury had sent a bullet whizzing from the bed of the lead splattered wagon, and the terrible impact of that big ball had torn Norrington from his horse.

He was aware of La Tour lunging past with his cowhide bag. La Tour was angry. "They shot a hole through the whisky barrel. What a waste!"

He saw the doctor lower to one knee beside Hyman. In a little while La Tour swiveled his look and grinned awkwardly at him and Frank knew Hyman would not die.

Jean ran to him from the screen of cedar. They walked along the face of the cliff, her sobs slowly quieting.

Jean lifted her face to Frank. The faint sunlight showed a placidness to her smile. "Frank," she whispered softly, "we'll come thru with our horse herd. We'll have our fresh start." He drew her tighter and she murmured, "A woman doesn't quit her journey—not when she's beside her man and she's as sure as I am."

THE END

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D.
Written for NEA Service

It is much easier to tell other people how to raise their children than it is to actually rear our own. It is easy to criticize other parents.

Others lose their tempers and "yell at their children" when the children are doing little that is wrong. There is more wrong with other parents than there is with their children.

Other people become exasperated because their children do not act like adults. They take their children to the wrong places and keep them up too late at night. Of course, their children are not well-behaved. In fact they are pretty bad, but what can you expect when their parents act the way they do?

Our children are normal children. Our children sometimes act mischievously, but we want them to have some fun. Occasionally our children go a little too far and we become aggravated. We do raise our voices a little bit. We do have to correct them when they go out of bounds according to our behavior standards.

Sometimes God must feel discouraged with the actions of his adult children when He sees how we all deal with our children and with ourselves. We all actually lose our patience so easily and we discipline the children instead of disciplining ourselves.

Slugfest Seen In Bout Between Anthony, Johnson

Boxing fans who follow their sport on television can enjoy one of those popular slugger-versus-boxer matches on the July 20 Cavalcade of Sports boxing show.

Tony Anthony of New York, a KO specialist, meets fellow townsman Tony Johnson in a scheduled ten round light heavyweight battle at Madison Square Garden. (The bout will be telecast by station WSLI Friday at 8 p. m.)

Anthony, 21, is rated by his 1952 Olympic teammate, Floyd Patterson, as one of the best punchers in the business today. A former Golden Gloves and national amateur welter champion, Anthony has scored an amazing 20 knockouts in 27 wins during his professional career. He has twice been before TV audiences in bouts with high ranking Bobby Boyd and Willie Troy.

Tony Johnson, a pro since 1948, also is no stranger on television. Recently he scored a decisive win over Wildcat Billy McNece before a nationwide audience. With a record that shows only one KO loss in 37 starts, indications are the bout should be a real tip-off to Anthony's punching prowess.

Burdette, Buhl, Key Players In Braves' Bid for Pennant; Cards, Pirates Play 1-1 Tie

By United Press

Low Burdette and Bob Buhl form the National League's No. 1 pitching combination today and shape up as the key players in the Braves' battle to win their first pennant in Milwaukee.

With matching 11-4 won-and-lost records, the two right-handers have won more games than any pitching duo on the Braves' rivals and they seem to be getting better as the season wears on. Buhl chalked up his 11th win Monday and Burdette followed with his 11th Wednesday night when the Braves downed the New York Giants, 7-3.

Burdette, who has won his last four games, limited the Giants to eight hits and struck out nine as the Braves supported him with a seven-hit attack that included a triple, double and single by Hank Aaron. Aaron raised his average to .329.

The victory enabled the Braves to restore their first place lead to two games when the Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the second-place

Cincinnati Redlegs, 6-3. The Philadelphia Phillies beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-4 and 6-1, and the St. Louis Cardinals battled to a 1-1 tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the other National League games.

Redleg Streak Snapped

The Dodgers routed nemesis Johnny Klippstein with a four-run first inning and went on to snap the Redlegs' four-game winning streak. Carl Erskine won his fifth straight and seventh decision of the year although he needed help from Clem Labine in the seventh. Sandy Amoros climaxed the Dodgers' big first inning with a two-run homer.

Robin Roberts won his 10th game and Curt Simmons his sixth as the Phillies made it eight victories in their last 10 games. Roberts yielded 11 hits but left seven men stranded in the opener while Simmons throttled the Cubs with five hits in the nightcap. Jim Greengrass drove in four runs in the second game for the Phillies.

Dale Long doubled home Johnny O'Brien in the top of the ninth to earn the Pirates a deadlock with the Cardinals in a game ended by rain in the top of the 10th. That run cost Vinegar Bend Mizell his 10th win after he shut out the Pirates with three hits for eight frames. The game will be replayed as part of a doubleheader on Aug. 23.

Yanks Lose Two

In the American League, the Detroit Tigers snapped the New York Yankees' 11-game winning streak with 4-4 and 4-3 victories. Paul Foytack struck out 10 batters to win his seventh game in the opener and Frank Lary beat the Yankees for the fourth time this year in the second game. Mickey Mantle hit his 31st homer in the opener to go nine games ahead of Babe Ruth's record 1927 pace.

The Cleveland Indians rolled to an 11-1 victory after homers by Pete Runnels, Ed Fitzgerald and Jim Lemon paced the Washington Senators to a 7-5 win. Hank Aguirre won his first game of the year in relief of Early Wynn for the Indians. Pedro Ramos won his sixth for Washington in the opener.

The Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, on Fred Hatfield's ninth-inning error with the bases filled and two out, extending their winning streak to six games and the Sox' losing skid to 11. Morris Martin got credit for the win and Ellis Kinder was tabbed with the loss.

Mel Parnell spun a seven-hitter in his first start since pitching a no-hitter last Saturday as the Boston Red Sox beat the Kansas City Athletics, 7-4. Jackie Jensen's one-run single and Don Buddin's two-run double were the key blows of the Red Sox' four-run eighth inning rally.

Reds Defeat Walker's, 13-7, In Kiwanis Play

By David Nelson

The Reds downed Walker's Cleaners, 13-7, in the only regularly scheduled Kiwanis league game Wednesday.

The winners had only three hits off Potter, the losing hurler, but capitalized on 15 bases on balls to win. Pool pitched for the winning Reds, giving up seven runs on seven safe hits, five errors and six passes.

Hansen led the winners at the plate with two singles and Pavlenko homered and singled for Walker's.

All managers of III League teams will meet Friday at the VFW field at 7:30 p. m. to prepare for the second round of play.

Norris City Hands Teen-Age All-Stars Second Defeat, 13-12

The Harrisburg Teen-Age All-Stars tasted defeat for the second time Wednesday night as they were defeated by Norris City, 13-12.

Dagley and Johnson, Norris City pitchers, were touched for 10 hits, one more than was given up by King and Molinarolo of Harrisburg, but managed to scatter them out in winning.

Morehead led the winners at bat with three safeties, and Johnson had two long triples. For the locals Aldridge picked up three hits, King tripled twice and Vick had two singles.

In a preliminary game the Harrisburg Kitty league All-Stars edged Norris City, 3-2.

Battle of 'Bean Ball' in Majors Rapidly Approaching Critical Danger Point

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's "battle of the bean ball" is rapidly approaching the same critical danger point today that brought about the national pastime's greatest tragedy 36 years ago.

The age-old cry of "brush him back"—an angry entreaty for the pitcher to knock the batter down—echoes from virtually every dugout in both major leagues.

One of this season's victims, Don Zimmer of the Dodgers, already is through for the year, perhaps done with baseball. Another victim, Hank Thompson of the Giants, goes around with a nagging constant buzzing in his head.

Pitchers consider the "brush back pitch," which is only a polite name for a bean ball, part of their "bread and butter." They only mean to intimidate the batters, not kill them. Occasionally, however, something goes wrong.

One of those times was a mild August day in 1920, the kind of day it felt good to be alive.

Chapman Gets Hit

Carl Mays, a submarine ball pitcher for the Yankees, got one in too close to Cleveland shortstop Ray Chapman. The ball hit Chapman on the side of the head and he sprawled grotesquely in the dust near home plate.

Muddy Ruel, who was catching for the Yankees that day, remembers the episode vividly.

"The ball hit Chapman so hard that it rolled out toward the infield and most everybody thought he had bunted it," Ruel says. "It was a sickening sight, seeing poor Ray laying there in the dirt."

Less than 72 hours later Chapman was dead.

This season, the battle of the bean ball has flared up with renewed violence.

Adcock Chases Gomez

Last Tuesday night, big Joe Adcock of the Braves, incensed at being hit by a fast ball, chased Giant pitcher Ruben Gomez from the mound into the dugout in a wild scene that almost precipitated a full-scale riot.

And only last Sunday, Don Newcombe of Brooklyn and Warren Hacker of the Cubs engaged in a bean ball vendetta that was climaxed when Dodger Manager Walt Alston removed Newcombe to keep him from being suspended.

Earlier this year Bill Bruton of Milwaukee charged out to the mound with a bat in his hands to get at Russ Meyer of the Cubs, whom he charged threw at him. And a few weeks ago, Bob Grim of the Yankees and Dave Philley of the White Sox started a fist fight over an alleged dusting at tempt.

Wearing helmets has become mandatory in the National League this season and most players wear them in the American League but the war between pitchers and batters goes on unabated.

"I ain't looking to hurt anybody," says one American League veteran pitcher, "but at the same time I'm not going to let anyone take my bread and butter away."

To which a hitter answers, "They got their jobs and we got ours. Nobody's ever going to settle this thing."

Somebody had better before there's another Mays-Chapman disaster.

Early Wynn Struck In Jaw by Line Drive

WASHINGTON (AP)—X-rays will be taken of Cleveland pitcher Early Wynn's injured jaw today to determine if it has been broken.

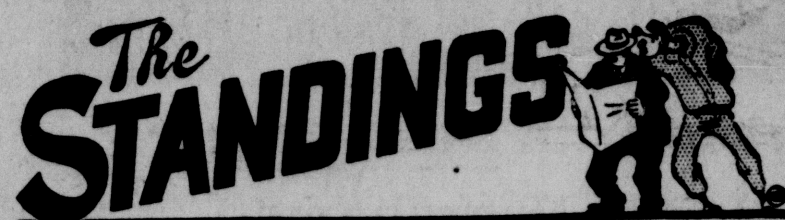

The veteran hurler was struck by a line drive during Wednesday night's second game of a two-night doubleheader with the Washington Senators and 16 stitches were taken in the left side of his chin.

The oldest known specimen of a flowering plant has recently been found in the San Juan Mountains of Colorado, the National Geographic Society reports. A palm-like growth that flourished 165 million years ago, it left the imprint of its leaves on Colorado's red rock. Fossil experts have discovered seven such imprints. The largest was 18 inches long.

Paper Connects Hodge Dealings With Gangsters

ST. LOUIS — The Post-Dispatch said today Orville E. Hodge, ousted Illinois state Auditor, had business associations with several southern Illinois gangsters and gamblers.

The newspaper, in a copyrighted story from Springfield, Ill., said the information was developed by federal agents and is now in the hands of State's Atty. George P. Coutrakon at Springfield.

It said Frank (Buster) Wortman, East St. Louis gangster, and Thomas Berry, former Belleville gambler and slot machine operator, at one time had a financial interest in the $600,000 Esquire Apartment Hotel in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Hodge is a part owner of the hotel.

The newspaper said Coutrakon has information that Berry and other southern Illinois underworld figures advanced Hodge $30,000 last year to support his abortive campaign for governor of Illinois.

Clarify Balloting On Wheat Quotas

Farmers whose names are not on the County ASC registers are not necessarily ineligible to vote in the July 20 wheat marketing quota referendum, according to Herman Driskell, chairman of the Saline County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

Where the farmer's eligibility to vote cannot immediately be established, the chairman explained, the regulations which govern the holding of the referendum provide that such a farmer may vote a "challenged" ballot. This merely means that the farmer's eligibility to vote will be determined by the local county committee before his ballot is tabulated as a "valid" ballot. Such a determination must be made within four days after the date of the referendum.

Farmers eligible to vote in the July 20 wheat quota referendum are those farmers who intend to harvest more than 15 acres of wheat for grain on the farm in 1957. Such farmers must also be entitled to share in the proceeds of such wheat crop as owner-operator, cash tenant, standing rent or fixed rent tenant, landlord of a share tenant, share tenant, or sharecropper.

In addition, if a person engages in the production of wheat as guardian, administrator, executor, or trustee in such a manner as to qualify as a voter, he will be eligible to vote in the capacity of guardian, administrator, executor, or trustee. In such cases, however, the persons for whom he is acting in a fiduciary capacity will not be eligible to vote.

County ASC committees are directed to make an investigation in each case of controversy or dispute regarding the eligibility of a voter to cast a ballot in the wheat referendum.

USW Chief Doubts Taft-Hartley Law Will Be Invoked

PITTSBURGH — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald said today he does not believe President Eisenhower will invoke the Taft-Hartley law to settle the nationwide steel strike, now in its 19th day.

McDonald, under White House pressure along with industry negotiators to end the walkout of 650,000 USW members, said he recalled Mr. Eisenhower telling the 1952 American Federation of Labor convention that "injunctions do not settle the underlying causes of strikes."

"I have every confidence in the President and have no reason whatsoever to believe that he has changed his mind," McDonald declared.

Steel strike negotiators, needed by President Eisenhower's concern over the economic effects of the strike, were scheduled to meet during the day.

Bill Authorizing Federal Building Of Dam Defeated

By United Press

The Senate today defeated a Democratic bill to authorize federal construction of a high dam in Hells Canyon on the Idaho-Oregon border.

The vote was 51 against the measure to 41 for.

A similar measure is before the House Rules Committee. But chances of House action on it appeared slight.

The measure was sponsored by Democrats and opposed by most Republicans. The controversy is between supporters of public power and friends of private power.

The Federal Power Commission already has authorized the Idaho Power Co. to build three dams in the canyon. The company already is at work on the big power project.

Pickets Stall Visit Of Area Firemen To Joppa Power Plant

METROPOLIS, Ill. — A picket line of operating engineers stalled a visit of southern Illinois firemen to the Joppa steam power plant Wednesday.

The visit was scheduled as a highlight of a meeting of the 32-county Egyptian Fire Fighters Assn. here.

Firemen decided to call off the tour when they saw the picket line. Operating engineers at the plant struck June 30.

R. O. Rogers, Sandoval, was re-elected president of the association. Other officers re-elected were: Walter Lowe, Sparta, first vice president; B. C. McKinney, Olney, second vice president; George Holmes, Carterville, secretary; and Urba Hanson, Murphysboro, treasurer.

NEW YORK — Leading groups edged higher in the morning trading on the stock market today.

Users Group to Present Case Against NYC

SPRINGFIELD — A New York Central users defense committee will present its case against removal of two trains connecting Harrisburg and Chicago here Sept. 14.

The New York Central Railroad is seeking to remove its Trains 462 and 463 from service. Opposition attorneys completed two days of cross-examination of company witnesses here Wednesday at an Illinois Commerce Commission hearing on the case.

Frank M. Pfeiffer, Springfield, attorney for the committee said some 17 communities and a number of chambers of commerce and other civic organizations have joined in opposition to the removal of the two trains.

Pfeiffer said the two trains are the only remaining rail service connections between southeastern Illinois and Chicago, and alternate service available is the trains are discontinued would not be satisfactory.

The trains operate between Chicago, Danville and Harrisburg. A section of the route runs through Indiana.

Senate Group to Probe Scandal

WASHINGTON — The Senate Banking Committee today launched a preliminary investigation into the half-million dollar check scandal in Illinois.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) assigned two staff members to go to Illinois to look into the matter. Fulbright said he wants to determine if a full-scale committee investigation is warranted.

Fulbright told newsmen he asked the staff members, Robert Wallace and Don Rogers, to leave for Illinois "at their earliest convenience."

The preliminary inquiry was requested by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.).

Douglas told a news conference he feels the committee should look into the role of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in the case.

Minister's Daughter Named Miss USA To Compete for Miss Universe Title

LONG BEACH, Calif. — A 20-year-old minister's daughter from Iowa competes tonight as the newly-crowned Miss USA in semi-finals of the Miss Universe beauty pageant.

Carol Morris, statuesque Miss Iowa, was selected as Miss USA Wednesday night from among 16 domestic finalists. She will vie with 29 foreign beauties during the next two days for the coveted title of most beautiful girl in the world.

The blue-eyed, brown-haired Drake University student from Ottumwa, Iowa, was stunned when she found she was the domestic beauty queen and exclaimed, "I didn't deserve it, but thank God."

Miss USA of 1956 is the only child of the Rev. Laverne Morris, pastor of the Davis Street Christian Church of Ottumwa. She stands five-feet, seven-inches tall and weighs 129 pounds.

She is a junior at Drake University where she is studying to be a teacher. During the summer months she works as a lifeguard at an Ottumwa swimming pool.

The radiant winner, who measures 36-25-36, is the Iowa state champion at synchronized swimming.

Runners-up in the Miss USA contest, in order of placement, were: Betty Cherry, 20, Miss South Carolina; Nancy McCollum, 19, Miss Arkansas; Shari Lewis, 19, Miss Nebraska; and Jo Dodson, 18, Miss Texas.

"I'm very, very happy," Miss Morris sobbed when she was introduced as Miss USA to some 4,000 persons in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. "I only hope I can uphold the glory of our country in the finals."

Along with her title of Miss USA, the winner will be granted a movie contract with Universal-International studios. But she stated, "I'm not sure about a movie career."

Fifteen finalists for the Miss Universe title will be selected tonight. Miss Universe and her runners-up will be chosen Friday night.

Tough New Narcotics Measure Signed by President Eisenhower

WASHINGTON — Narcotics Commissioner H. J. Anslinger said the tough new narcotics bill signed by President Eisenhower provides "our greatest weapon to attack the vicious traffickers and to suppress the abuse of narcotic drugs."

The new law authorizes a mandatory prison sentence of from 10 years to life for anyone convicted of selling or giving heroin to a person under 18. A death sentence could be imposed at the discretion of a jury.

The convicted peddler also would be subject to a maximum fine of $20,000.

U. S. Command To Leave Tokyo Within Year

WASHINGTON — U. S. plans for overhauling the military high command in the Pacific could bring closer the promised "progressive withdrawal" of American ground forces from Japan, authorities said today.

In a far-reaching shakeup, the Defense Department announced Wednesday night that U. S. Far East Command Headquarters in Tokyo will be abolished in a year. Its defense area — Okinawa, Japan and Korea — and its responsibilities will be merged into Adm. Felix Stump's U. S. Pacific Command headquarters in Hawaii.

The shakeup will not affect U. S. troops now on Okinawa.

Stump currently is responsible for the rest of the Pacific area with Army, Navy and air forces under his joint command.

Military authorities said one effect of the move may be to encourage Japan to speed up its lagging rearmament efforts. The United States is pressing for a Japanese ground force of 350,000 men and 10 divisions. Japanese military leaders favor 180,000.

The United States and Japan agreed in diplomatic talks here last August that Japan would assume the main responsibility for its home defense as soon as possible. They also agreed to a "progressive withdrawal" of U. S. ground forces as Japanese capabilities increased.

The United States now has one Army division, one Marine regiment and support forces in Japan.

New "Lemon Whirl" Pie-made with fresh-tasting TOPIC and CINNAMON CRISP grahams!

COOL 'N' QUICK, our new Lemon Whirl Pie will be your favorite summertime dessert! So "lemony"-flavored, so creamy-whipped, so crunchily-crust!

The secret of the "no-bake" crust is Cinnamon Crisp grahams. You'll love the crispy texture and spicy cinnamon flavor!

Secret of the "no-cook" filling is fresh-tasting Topic. Topic whips quickly and easily—blends smoothly with the fruit gelatin to bring out the full lemon tang—and costs only 1/6 as much as expensive whipping cream!

Has our new Lemon Whirl Pie made your mouth water? Here's the recipe—now go to it!

LEMON WHIRL PIE

(Makes single crust 9" pie)

1 3-oz. package lemon gelatin 1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup hot water 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/4 cup sugar 9-inch Cinnamon Crisp graham crust
1 cup undiluted Topic

Mix gelatin, hot water and sugar together; stir until dissolved. Cool until gelatin is thickened and syrupy (about 25-30 minutes). Chill Topic in refrigerator tray until crystals form around edges of tray (15-20 minutes). Whip stiff (about 1 minute); add lemon juice. Continue whipping until very stiff. Mix whipped Topic, gelatin and lemon rind together. Pour into crumb crust. Chill about 1 hour or until firm. Top with remaining crumbs.

FOR CINNAMON CRISP GRAHAM CRUST: Mix 1 1/2 cups cracker crumbs (Cinnamon Crisp or regular grahams), 1/4 cup melted butter and 2 tablespoons sugar together. Line sides and bottom of 9-inch pie plate, saving 1/4 cup crumbs for pie topping.

TOPIC IS PERFECT FOR COFFEE "CREAMING" AND COOKING, TOO!
